EFFORT TO CHANGE THE NAME OF THE ASSOCIATION.

DUTTE, Mont., Sept. 4.-At the meeting of the International Mining congress this morning the effort to endorse the Kearns bill, pro-viding for a change in the mining laws of the country so as to establish square claims and do away with extra-lateral rights, was defeated by a vote of 95 to 3. The matter was the first order of the morning and the attend-ance was large. There was a heated ance was large. There was a heated discussion, but when the roll was called the only two states voting in the affirmative were California and Missouri. All the other states voted solidly in the negative. Delegates from Washington, D. C., declined to vote. After the vote was announced, Majors of Montana offered a resolution to the effect that the congress go on record against the Kearns bill and to send a recommendation to the Unitince was large. Effort to Change the Name, desire the present congress to lose its identity for their own benefit and pur-pose. Professor J. A. Holmes of Chapel Hill, N. D., is the leader of the movement and appears to be support-ed by men of prominence at Washing-ton, D. C. In connection with the change of name and method of electing delegates to the congress, it is proposed to create an associate mem-bership and allow miners and others to become members upon the payment of $1 per year. Would Pay, But Not Vote.

Professor Helmes made the statement that the organization would have a membership of at least 1,000 miners in South Dakota, who would pay their dollars, but who would not be entitled to a voice in the congress. He said that in all the various mining camps innumerable miners would join the association. Under the recommendation of the committee on resolutions, which has reached over a fillion of dollars of annual product, calls for the establishment of a national department of mining, the chief officer of which should be a member of the president's cabinet.

Accounting for the Plotless Play.

That physical rest may be obtained by bringing into play a different set of muscles from those previously in use is illustrated in the old story of the pugmill mule that was found to step off briskly in the afternoon if allowed to reverse the motion of the mill. Absolute rest of mind or body scarcely exists; relative rest or modification of the mode of activity gives a sensation of rest at any rate. After a long day of close visual application, when the hands press the tired eyes (although this particular mode of stimulating visual sensation may be harmful), how delightful to many persons are the subjective sensations of color—the kaleidoscopic effects that come and go with slight variations in pressure. The brain finds rest in an objectless play of color; so the tired mind seeks rest from the stress of routine duties, not in the unconsciousness of sleep but in the frolic-

The late "Jimmy" Patterson, known well in local newspaper work, sat down in a game of poker with some fellow reporters one night, but soon drew out of the game, saying he was too drowsy and tired to play. He took a chair in a corner and was soon sound asleep. After two or three hours, the boys turned out the lights, nudged Jinmy until he was awake, and then proceeded to talk, shuffle cards and rattle chips as though the game were at its height. For fully five minutes Patterson listened to their well-devised comedy—"I'll take two cards." "Deuces and kings." "I'll stay." 'Hold that match till I set a light." 'Look out, Billy—you'll get your sleeve in the beer, etc. Then they heard him rise; the chair, which had been tilted, fell with a crash; and he faltered:

"Say, boys—I—I—think there's something the matter with me! I can't—I can't see you."

Sweeping For Exercise.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)
Physicians recommend sweeping as being one of the most beneficial means of strengthening muscles and giving tone to the entire system, as it brings into action all of the important muscles of the body.

In sweeping the swaying Delsarte ex In sweeping the swaying Delsarte exercise can be put into practical use, as moving from left to right advance left leg, bearing weight on ball of foot, incline head toward it and torso slightly backward, while inclination hollows the back at the waist line and raises the chest. As the right leg follows and bears the weight, the head inclines backward and torso forward, and there will be easy play of the ankles. Reverse the motion and sweep to the right. The strength used on the broom must come from the arms.

Dewet and Scotch Whisky.

Ost. James Gazette.)

Dewet is possessed of humor. One of the leading officials in a refuge camp is a Scotsman, who during the dinner took occasion in offering the general a drink to say he must have got a fair amount of whisky among his captured convoys. Dewet was much amused at this, and said that before attacking a convoy he made inquiries if they were guarded by Scotsmen. If this were so, he further inquired if it contained any whisky. If the second condition accompanied the first he always gave the convoy a wide berth, because he knew the beggars would fight to the last man! (St. James Gazette.)

Lots of children are dull because they will not study. They will not study because of an unconscious effort or strain which accompanies the use of the eyes for close work.

Proper glasses will relieve that strain and make study a pleasure. Better see to your child's eyes before school starts.—Schramm, O. D. Expert Refractionist.

If You Use Husler's

The simplest remedy for indigestion, constipation, billiousness and the many ailments arising from a disordered stomach, liver or bowels is Ripans Tabules. They have accomplished wonders where other remedles have falled to accomplish anything. They assist digestion. They are a good and useful remedy and their timely aid removes the necessity of calling a physician for the many little lils that be set mankind. They go straight to the seat of the trouble, relieve the distress, cleanse and cure the affected parts, banish that "all broken up" feeling and give the system a general toning up—and they do all this without griping or inconveniencing the patient.
